

If you are injured in a crash, you're entitled to Accident Benefits regardless of fault.

Benefits

The following benefits are available to motorists, cyclists and pedestrians involved in a crash with a B.C. motorist:

- medical care
- rehabilitation
- wage loss compensation
- homemaker benefits
- death benefits, and
- funeral benefits.

If you have permanent injuries, Accident Benefits also pay for costs such as:

- attendant care,
- specialized aids, and
- vocational training, depending on your injuries.

Applying for Accident Benefits

If you are injured in a motor vehicle crash, you can apply for ICBC Accident Benefits to help you with medical costs and wage loss, regardless of who is at fault.

IMPORTANT:

You only have 90 days after your crash to return your Accident Benefits form to your adjuster, or you may lose your right to claim for those benefits.

To make an I.C.B.C claim

1. Call Dial-a-Claim 24 hours per day, 7 days per week
 - 604-520-8222 in Lower Mainland
 - 1-800-910-4222 anywhere else
2. Have as much information with you at the time, such as
 - driver's license number
 - license number of the vehicle involved
 - name of the police agency investigating
 - police file number
 - time and location of the accident
 - nature of the injuries

You must be interviewed by an ICBC Claims Adjuster to apply for Accident Benefits.

Applying for Accident Benefits does not waive your right to consult a lawyer or to file a later lawsuit against one of the parties involved in the accident. Once you have applied for Accident Benefits, you can submit bills or receipts for medical expenses to the adjuster for payment or reimbursement.

Note: Accident Benefits for medical and rehabilitation costs is separate from a settlement payment. Settlements require a longer investigation and assessment to be completed. This does not affect Accident Benefits.
